HULL:

- Laminated GRP monocoque hull.
- A structural inner moulding made of unidirectional materials is bonded and laminated to the hull at various points. This plays an important structural role in absorbing loads and pressure points (shroud chain stays, keel, rudder, etc.) throughout the structure, distributing them to reduce stresses in the hull.
- The surface material of the inner moulding makes it easier to clean and provides a better finish.
- The hull gel coat is white in colour.
- The deck is of sandwich construction of fibreglass/balsa/polyester resin for a better balance between stiffness/lightness and optimal insulation.
- All working and circulation areas are treated with "Picot" anti-slip coating.
- An inner moulding is bonded to the inside of the deck to improve its finish.
